Applications open for January and May intakes

APPLICATIONS are being invited for 2006 enrolments in Natural Medicine courses including the Advanced Diploma in Naturopathy, Advanced Diploma in Western Herbal Medicine, Advanced Diploma in Ayurveda, Advanced Diploma in Homoeopathy and the Diploma of Remedial Massage.

There will be two intakes in 2006, the first in January and the second in May.

The January intake is for weekend classes, where students will attend campus, mainly on Saturday for academic studies.

The May intake is for weekday classes, where students will attend campus mainly for two days a week, usually Tuesday and Thursday, for their academic studies.

In addition to those days students are required to attend the student clinic to complement their academic training and this would be on an additional day from their third full-time term.

If you are serious and truly passionate about Natural Medicine and you wish to apply the fundamentals to your own life and reap the rewards yourself and then share your knowledge with others, the Australian Institute of Holistic Medicine is pleased to invite you to become part of our Institute.

Enrolments are strictly limited to those who have dedication and commitment to the lifestyle changes that may be necessary to live in congruence with the fundamentals of Natural Medicine.

Did you know that more than 80 per cent of the world’s population uses natural therapies as a major modality to treat sickness and to maintain good health?

Approximately 60 per cent of Australians regularly use natural therapies and there is a similar trend in most developed countries around the world.

If you are truly interested in being a part of this emerging field of health care and committed to a new and rewarding career in Natural Medicine, please contact the Institute on 9417 3553 or by email at info@aihm.wa.edu.au or for more information please visit our website at www.aihm.wa.edu.au

Bridging course provides basic skills

IF you would like to follow a career in natural medicine, but feel you do not have the necessary skills or academic background to study further, a bridging course can help you on your way. The course is designed to provide a basic knowledge of subjects such as anatomy or physiology, chemistry and other areas required to complete a course in natural medicine. Major areas covered in the course are:

- Introduction to natural medicine.
- Basic chemistry.
- Introduction to anatomy and physiology.
- Self esteem/motivation.
- Stress management.
- Assignment writing.
- Study skills and examination techniques.

The course is particularly beneficial to those who have not undertaken studies in recent times and/or who do not have a background in the biological sciences and chemistry.

The next five-week bridging course will run from March 21. The course is designed for those:

- Who have not completed year 12 or the equivalent.
- Have not studied chemistry and human biology in year 12.
- Have not done formal study for more than five years.
- Those who wish to revise these areas prior to commencing their course.

Schedules made to suit everyone

YOU may be one of those looking for a career change at the beginning of next year but feel you do not have the time.

The Australian Institute of Holistic Medicine caters for a wide range of students — from stay-at-home mums looking after kids to working mothers, health professionals, computer analysts, marketing personnel and nurses — all looking for a career change.

To cater for the range of students, each with their individual time constraints, the institute offers courses with time schedules to suit just about everyone.

Weekday and weekend classes are all available to meet the needs of students.

Weekend classes are very popular for those who find they do not have time during the week to attend campus in Jandakot.

The new intake for weekend full time studies is in January next year.

The first weekend class commences on January 21.

This means you can complete full time studies by just attending on Saturday.

If you wish to do the course on a part-time basis you may enroll at the beginning of any term — January, May and September.
